Dear Editor:

Many of our members report that their families look first to the Torrance Press for the best in shopping for the week. They maintain that your advertisers keep in stock, at reasonable prices, a quantity of high grade goods. Hence they have made a habit of dealing almost exclusively with these fine business people.

It seems that everyone in the family enjoys the impartial manner in which you report the news. It strengthens the confidence of the community in our civic, educational, religious and political institutions when the people understand that an unexcelled selective process, such as you employ, brings out the facts about them.

Your editorials show truth of vision, truth of interpretation and truth of presentations which are the standards or reporting.

We wish to commend you for the manner in which you have helped the people of Torrance recognize the fine grade of character and good qualities of citizenship of our members who are engaged in public service. This places them on the same level as their fellowmen engaged in the same activities and quickly dismisses the idea of any inferior position of labor.

In countless ways, the Torrance Press renders a real service to the city of Torrance. It is a major for general good.

Sincerely yours,
Rec. Sec'y., L. U. 1414

they were true to a diluted degree only, we would take issue with such initiation practices.

We take issue with the recent initiation practices because the thinking involved was of the most negative variety.

We feel that this request expresses the sentiment of the community.

We feel that this request expresses the sentiment of the community.

Initiations are nothing new. Every religion places noble and awe-inspiring demands upon the prospective convert. Primitive tribes asked that a youth coming of age give evidence that he could cope with the demands of life. Civilized societies have made identical demands. Social, professional, and service clubs of all types existing nowadays ask that a new member make some constructive or harmless contribution to the club.

There is nothing "sissy" in using the imagination creatively, constructively, positively.

There have always been groups and there are schools and there are colleges which have done the opposite. Their example neither condones their practices nor makes them more desirable. Groups which have been constructive rather than destructive in their thinking and doing have secured the highest respect of their community.

We hardly wish to advocate that initiations lose their spirit of fun from now on. Serious initiations are awe-inspiring and wonderful. But humorous initiations are equally wonderful. Both have their place.

But there are also two types of humor. One is benevolent and one is malicious. Malice is hardly meant for friends. There are enough cars which need washing, enough lawns which need mowing, enough signs which need painting to keep an army of initiates busy the year around. Nor do we feel that the city would be terribly outraged if it were serenaded occasionally by a group of embarrassed kids sporting some unusual "fashions."

We state once more that we ask that a constructive initiation policy be adopted by all groups from now on. We shall not place the blame for what happened with any one person or group of persons. Everyone can error and, by the same merciful token, everyone can mend his ways. Because we have faith in this principle, we have faith in the individuals involved.

If the initiation-episode leads to an improved general policy, the Varsity Club, which otherwise has been one of the most respected service organizations, has really been the instrument for lending one of the greatest services to the community.
